MARTIN BRADFORD DIES FROM INJURIES

Collided with Truck While Riding Motorcycle in Aberdeen—Accident Occurred Thursday Morning, Aug. 23, and Death Follows Friday Afternoon, Aug. 24—Was Exemplary Young Man.

Martin Bradford, aged 19, while riding a motorcycle on the streets of Aberdeen, Thursday morning, August 23, collided with a truck from which he sustained injuries that caused his death Friday afternoon. It is generally agreed that no blame attaches to the driver of the truck.

While he lingered on the brink of another world, his grandmother, Mrs. L. A. Martin, and several other loved ones including his uncle, Dr. R. A. Clanton, of Grenada, went to his bedside and remained with him until the end came. He was conscious all the while and never seemed to know that the silver chords of his life were breaking. His remains were brought to Grenada and from here carried to Pleasant Grove church burying ground where, after fitting words were spoken by Rev. W. E. Farr of the Baptist church, assisted by Rev. J. H. Holder of the Methodist church, they were laid gently away beneath the sod from which the believing world knows they will come forth, just as Jesus came up out of the grave.

Martin Bradford was born in the Chapel Hill community in January 1910. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bradford, both of whom have been called to the other world, since which time he had made his home with Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Clanton, Mrs. Clanton being his father's sister. He gave every promise of ripening into an honorable and useful manhood. He was always courteous and especially thoughtful of his elders. He was obliging and had an unusually discerning mind. He was attentive to his studies and did not confine his reading to just those books which he was compelled to study in the school room. He had been in Aberdeen and that section of the state for some time selling silk hosiery with the view of making money to aid him in finishing his college course.

It is one of the unfathomable things of life when youth is stricken in the very spring time of existence. But the story comes echoing through the hills of time that death is no respecter of persons. Yet when hearts are bleeding over these things, the Savior's words speak out of the celestial regions and tells the sorrowing, "He is not dead, but sleepeth", and the one that uttered these words conquered death and the grave. So it is that the loved ones and friends of this young man have every right to believe that he is now looking at them out of the windows of heaven and that he is doing all the Angels will allow to make sure of their following him to that beautiful land where there are no accidents, no heartaches, no sorrow or death or night.

Besides his grandmother and Mrs. Clanton, he leaves other aunts, one of them being Mrs. Jack Dyre, and a brother who makes his home in Itta Bena. To the bereft, The Sentinel tenders the sincerest sympathy.

FARM BUREAU COTTON ASSN. OPENS FIVE BRANCH OFFICES

From the main office in Jackson, President C. L. Neill announces the establishment by the directors of five branch offices of the Mississippi Farm Bureau Cotton Association. These offices will greatly increase the already efficient service this association is rendering its members.

Jackson, Meridian, Hattiesburg, Grenada and Tupelo are the points decided on for the location of these offices and they are now open and in charge of men especially trained and experienced in association methods and details. As managers they have chosen expert cotton classers, who have passed the government examinations and these men will be assisted by experienced accountants who have been in the central office at Jackson and who are thoroughly familiar with details.

That the Mississippi Farm Bureau Cotton Association has successfully served its membership is evidenced by the fact that during the past five seasons it has handled 243,876 bales of cotton at a valuation of $19,836,707.55.

Membership in the association assures the farmer of government classing, full premium for extra grades or staples, selling service at any time he may desire to sell, and an accurate accounting for each and every bale delivered.

The association has proved a dependable, cooperative marketing service may be maintained on a non-profit basis to the mutual benefit of all, and the establishment of the five branch offices at advantageous points is an additional service the farmers will appreciate.

W. L. Armstrong and J. T. Neely have charge of the Grenada branch of the association.

Booneville Citizen Will Vote For Smith

Recalls Founding of This Country for Religious Freedom and Says Catholics and Protestants Joined in Laying Foundations of Government—Tired of Republican Debauchery and Negro Domination.

Editor Grenada Sentinel:

I am not a Roman Catholic, but a Methodist; and with his Catholic views, would not like to mix up with Al Smith in denominational matters. However, Governor Smith is an American citizen, and by no less authority than Charles Hughes, of New York, is a governmental genius, and, at the same time, a gladiator in political battle.

The Roman Catholics fled with swift feet along with the many protestant creeds seeking refuge on these American shores, from the persecutions of an English Government, prompted by an English Church. They joined hands and hearts and fortunes with the other creeds in promulgating the Declaration of Independence, and in putting over the War of the Revolution. In adopting the constitution of the United States, the world's first great republic, the Catholics and Protestants united on the first Bill of Rights and made it a part of the fundamental law to protect religious liberty and to guarantee American citizens the sacred right to worship as they please.

In the early struggles of the colonies and of the new republic, the Catholics of Maryland, and elsewhere, were equally devoted to the interests of the public. Our constitution does not provide one sort of liberty and protection to Protestants and another sort to Catholics, for the founders were composed of both. They were too well schooled through long religious persecutions to spoil the government's standards of religious liberty and free democratic government by any such show of hate and intolerance.

In registering as electors, we pledge our faith and allegiance to this fundamental law of the land.

The faith of the south under our oaths of allegiance to the fundamental law, and fundamental principles of our government are bordering on a great test at this first quarter post of the twentieth century. I fear it will find too many of us prejudiced against a Democratic candidate on account of his religious convictions. Our prejudices may betray us like they did when we "bug-beared" the elevа-

Minister Tells Of Chinese Fire God

Writes from China Giving Interesting Account of Belief of Chinese in "Ho-zwen-bu-sah".

Editor Sentinel:

Herewith I send a Chinese fire-god. He may interest you and readers of your excellent paper. Feel free to print this letter without payment. I'd be glad for a marked copy if it appears. Indeed I'd be thankful for a sample copy of your paper whether letter appears or not.

Now about this god-of-fire, his name is "Ho-zwen-bu-sah." He rules fire. When he's displeased with people he sets their houses afire. Ho-zwen was a Taoist priest; but during a great battle he changed himself into a giant with three heads and six arms. He has three eyes, one in the middle of his forehead. He has red hair and he is of a fiery disposition. He rides on a fiery horse which snorts flames, and fire flashes from his hoofs. In the god's six hands he carries a heaven-wide flashing seal, a wheel of five fiery dragons, a gourd enclosing 10,000 fire crows, and two swords, and a thousand-mile smoke screen filled with swords of fire. No wonder he can scatter fire everywhere and do untold damage when on a rampage. People in whose house he starts a fire are not welcome in other homes lest, in so doing, they bring Ho-zwen's wrath upon themselves also. People where a fire starts hurry to the temple and plead with Ho-zwen to leave their house at once. When he leaves they thank him for punishing them. Ho-swen-bu-sah is much feared, also, because of the danger to the one in whose house the fire starts, for if it spreads to other houses and he is found, his neighbors throw him into the fire for bringing loss to them. So he runs away and is not seen again or comes back only after a long time. When the houses are rebuilt the old rubbish is put on his lot!

You would be greatly interested to see a Chinese fire and the fire-fighters at work. Crowds of firemen come each with a long name-banner. These banners are left in line against the walls of the narrow streets near the fire. One set of men are carriers having carrying poles with a bucket on each end of the pole. Ahead of each carrier runs a man with a gong beating wildly to make way for the carrier as he brings the water

Cotton Statistician Says Crop Improved

Report Says Crop Shows Improvement First Ten Days of August—Mississippi Has Held Her Own.

The following is the summary of the cotton crop reports as made by G. L. Fossick, cotton statistician, and published by the Commercial Appeal of August 27:

Reports, of the average date of Aug. 20, to The Commercial Appeal indicate that the cotton crop improved during the first 10 days of August, taking the belt as a whole: that there was deterioration, severe in some sections, between Aug. 10 and 20.

The first week or 10 days of August was favorable, from a weather standpoint, in Georgia and the Carolinas. Heavy rains and high winds, accompanying the tropical storm which swept northward through Florida, developed about the tenth. Corn and some other crops were hurt worse than cotton but many cotton fields were badly washed, some lowlands were inundated and cotton plants were badly whipped about by the winds. Conditions very favorable for weevil activity have developed. Weevils are present throughout most of Georgia and most of the Carolinas except the Piedmont; some heavy weevil damage is reported.

Arkansas, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Alabama show the best progress, during August, of any of the states. The weather was very dry and hot until late in the period, causing excessive shedding but holding the weevil in check. Rains about the eighteenth were badly needed.

Mississippi has probably not better than held its own, if that. Reports from some central sections of the state, including the southern half of the Yazoo Basin, indicate excellent progress; the southern one-third of the state appears to have gone back badly, due partly to weevil depredations; the northern one-third is spotted, ranging from very poor to fairly good.

Reports indicate that weevils are taking heavy toll in Louisiana. In addition the plant has been shedding badly. While deterioration appears to have been heaviest in the northwest, deterioration is quite generally reported.

Texas, as a whole, appears to have lost some ground, although there has, perhaps, been some improvement in the west and northwest in response to favorable rainfall. Most of the remainder of the state was too dry. Excessive shedding is quite generally reported in the dry areas and there is considerable complaint of small bolls, premature opening and root rot.

Reports from practically every section of the belt indicate the heaviest shedding in several years; reports also indicate the most spotted condition in several years and the most general weevil infestation since 1923.

Weevil infestation, while widespread, has not increased as rapidly as was expected, due probably to the controlling influence of a long period of hot, dry weather; some correspondents point out that the crop is late and suggest that weevil may be late with the crop. Recent rains over most of the belt, except Eastern Texas, have created a condition more favorable for boll weevil activity.

Grenada Note: When most of the data gathered for the Commercial Appeal's report were sent in, August 18, cotton crop conditions for this section were much better than for this week, or ten days later. There have been frequent rains since August 18, all of which are calculated to damage cotton and especially do the rains multiply boll weevil opportunities.

W. L. BROWN, FORMER GRENADIAN, IS DEAD

A telegram from Carl C. Brown to Mr. Earl Workman of Grenada conveyed the sad intelligence that Mr. W. L. Brown, his father, died in Washington City, whither he moved from Grenada about three years ago, August 22. Mr. Brown and family resided in Grenada several years during which time he was connected with the serum plant. Those who knew Mr. Brown best bore splendid testimony to the integrity of his character. Besides his son, he is survived by his wife and one daughter, Mrs. Ouida Fatherree, with whom numerous Grenadians sincerely sympathize.

ROBINSON WANTS ETHICAL CAMPAIGN

Democratic Vice-Presidential Nominee Finds Political Serpents Hissing; Sees Farm Problem as Main Issue—Stresses Need of Real Law Enforcement and Honesty in Government.

Hot Springs, Ark., August 30.—Senator Joe T. Robinson of this state accepted the Democratic nomination for vice president here tonight in an address pledging his party to adequate farm relief, an honest endeavor to enforce prohibition, the maintenance of a merchant marine and the eradication of corruption from the national government.

Claude G. Bowers of New York, the temporary chairman at the Houston convention delivered the notification address as chairman of the notification committee. The ceremonies took place at the Arlington Hotel before one of the largest gatherings in the history of Arkansas.

The nominee made a plea for a frank discussion of all the issues of the campaign without bitterness. Public attention has been concentrated on political affairs to a degree of intensity never before known, he said. In this campaign, he said, voters are interested not only in the issues, but in the personal characteristics of the candidates.

"The preliminary events of the contest indicate that in order to avoid bitterness, the leaders on both sides must display a sense of justice and fairness by refusing to become the beneficiaries of political influences and processes which they themselves are unwilling to employ," he continued. "In this way, and in no other, may the poisons of slander and libel be counteracted and overcome."

Arouse Prejudices

The quadrennial contest presents an inspiring spectacle when conducted with high standards of ethics, Senator Robinson said. But, he continued:

"Numerous political serpents are hissing in the dark and striking from cover, and with venomous malice seek to poison the thoughts and arouse the prejudice of those who will decide issues of far-reaching importance."

The spokesman of a party has a duty to tell the whole truth, he added, but "he proves himself unworthy if he knowingly accepts advantage from falsehood, even though not uttered or inspired by himself."

Senator Robinson characterized the attitude of the two parties with respect to the agricultural problem, the outstanding issue of the campaign. Both platforms recognize the distressed condition and hold out promises the relative value of which is apparent, he said.

The Republican party in 1924 gave virtually the same promise it gives this year, "to take whatever steps are necessary to bring back a balanced condition between agriculture, industry and labor," Senator Robinson asserted. However, the McNary-Haugen bill, prepared under the direction of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace had just been defeated and to regain the confidence of the farmers President Coolidge, in the 1924 campaign promised to call a conference to consider legislation for the next Congress.

The doctrine which Mr. Hoover has adopted originated from the conference which followed, Senator Robinson said. This doctrine provided that agricultural production should be limited to the demands of the domestic market "and with only such foreign markets as may be profitable."

"Generally the fundamental need is a balancing of agricultural production to our home demand."

The 69th Congress passed the McNary-Haugen bill, with a vote of 57 per cent of the Democrats and 52 per cent of the Republicans, he said. President Coolidge vetoed it. In the last session after it had been modified to meet some of the objections to it, the bill was pass ' again with increased majorities. Again the President vetoed it.

"These facts prove that the Republican party is either incapable of successfully dealing with the question or has deliberately violated its express promises to the farmers of the nation," Senator Robinson declared.

Mr. Hoover now asserts than "an adequate tariff is the foundation of farm relief," that inland waterways must be developed to assist the farmer and cooperative marketing must be stimulated by the extension of federal credits, Senator Robinson continued.

Increased tariffs can afford no relief, he argued, and the farmer will scarcely wait for the development of waterways. If cooperative marketing is the solution why has the administration failed to apply it, he asked.

In contrast, he said, the Demo-

Thinks Traffic Laws Are Hurting Grenada

J. A. Thomas, Elliott Citizen, Condemns Action of Officers in Rigid Enforcement of Traffic Laws in Grenada.

Editor Grenada Sentinel:-

I just want to ask if you and the other good people of Grenada really realize what is being done for your town, and how people who live nearby want to pass through there think about the arresting that goes on there for what they say is breaking traffic regulations? Now I don't stand for the fellow who is speeding and who is just running his car pell mell regardless of whom he meets. The truth is, it is the reckless driver that is the greatest danger on the road, but it is not him that your officers seem to be after. Here just yesterday, (Friday) the constable of this beat arrested in Grenada Rev. Arthur Sledge because he had no car license. He was tried before magistrate Hamsley, I am told, and made to pay $15. and the costs, as I hear it. Now this man had bought a tag at the right time; he is a law-abiding man. He had lost the tag he bought in December and did not know it. Bro. Sledge spends his whole life for the good of the people. He is trying to save the souls of men and women. He is no lawbreaker. Now why did not your officers make inquiry of this man and find out why he had no tag? That's the way they do in most towns. It is hurting your town, Mr. editor. There are but few people who know just what traffic rules are, certainly there are many of us who live in the country who do not know. I am glad that you had an editorial in the paper this week about this business. I am afraid that your officers are thinking much more about the little costs they are getting more than they do a violation of the law. I have never heard of these men being so outstanding for enforcing the law.

I want to say further that I think the community ought to make up the money and pay back to Bro. Sledge what he paid out. I will show my faith by my works by here and now agreeing to pay two dollars of the amount. What say the people of Grenada about what I am trying to say?

Yours truly,
J. A. THOMAS.

ANOTHER ORIGIN OF B. V. D.

A man went into Cohen's store to buy some B. V. D.'s. After he had made his selection he asked Cohen what that B. V. D. meant.

"Vell, you know that means that it is good kvality," replied Cohen.

"But what do the letters stand for?"

"Vell, you know that shows it is good stuff."

"Now if you don't tell me what these letters stand for, I'll not buy these things," said the customer angrily.

The threat made Cohen think fast. He replied: "Vell, Mister, it is a kind of trade secret, so I should not tell, but because it is you—but you must not give me away—the letters mean 'Buttons Vay Down.'"

Services will be held each evening next week at the same hour and the meeting will come to a close Sunday evening, Sept. 9th.

A cordial invitation is extended the public to attend any or all of the services. It is hoped to awaken still greater interest in the activities of the Pea Ridge church through the meeting.

State Fair Expects Big Farm Attendance

State Development Board Official Says Farmers from Every Secttion of State Will Attend Mississippi's Biggest Dairy Show—North Mississippi Expected to Contribute Much to Success of State Fair.

South Mississippians are out to take a lesson from north Mississippi, in the opinion of a representative of the Mississippi State Board of Development, in Grenada a few days ago for the meeting of Smith-Hughes vocational education teachers. As a result, he says, the Mississippi State Fair will be attended by a record number of farmers from other portions of the state eager to see the fine cattle that are building farm prosperity in the northern part of the state.

He reports that outstanding Jersey dairying herds of the south will be exhibited at the Mississippi State Fair at Jackson October 15 to 20.

"This will be the biggest dairy show Mississippi ever had, according to this visitor. The development of this industry in Mississippi has claimed widespread attention. Officials of the Mississippi Fair are determined to seize upon this opportunity to encourage the spread of dairying throughout the state. South Mississippians are busy driving out the tick. They want dairying. They want good dairy cows. They recognize the value of Mississippi-raised cows, and north Mississippi is sure to find the fair a builder of good markets for their surplus Jersey dairy animals.

"The fair will emphasize dairying heavily. Poultry, a kindred line of farm prosperity, also will be emphasized. The Mississippi State Poultry Federation will hold its annual meeting at the state fair. The attractions will be on a par with those of the big fairs of the west and the east. The liberal arts building has been doubled in capacity. There will be the usual thrilling auto races. Fair officials particularly are proud that Mississippi's state fair will be one of the cleanest of any state, free from 'skin games', gambling, tricksters, etc.

"Officials of the fair are sure that north Mississippians will contribute much to the success of their great agricultural classic at Jackson this year."

Miss Mabel Stire, of Jackson, is secretary-manager of the state fair, and J. Ed Ruff, of the state department of agriculture, is in charge of exhibits.

Holcomb School Opens September 3

Year Promises to Be One of Best in History—A. Y. McBride Will Head Strong Faculty.

According to announcements of the board of trustees and the principal, A. Y. McBride, the fifteenth session of the Holcomb Consolidated School will open Monday, September 3, at 9 'clock in the school auditorium with regular opening exercises. All patrons and friends of the district are cordially invited to be present.

Mr. McBride, the newly elected principal comes to the community well recommended. He is a school man of experience in consolidated and vocational work. He is capable, wide awake and energetic young man.

According to the regulations of the state accrediting commission, all teachers of the high school department must be college graduates and those of the grammar school must have two years of training in college or their equivalent. The trustees have spent no little time in securing teachers with the proper training and experience to hold the positions in the school. There are eleven teachers in the Holcomb faculty. Every teacher elected to fill the various places in the school has had the proper training and without a single exception all have had experience in their particular work. With the selection of teachers of proper training and experience, with the improvement in the buildings now taking place and with the addition of new physical equipment the Holcomb school is in the best condition to render the best service to the pupils of the district. The Holcomb school, with a fine corps of teachers and with the splendid cooperation that is given by the patrons of the community, is destined to have the best school year in the history of the institution.

The faculty is as follows: A. Y. McBride, principal and vocational work; O. E. Cowart, mathematics and science; Miss Agnes McKay, history and home science; Miss Gladys Hill, English and Latin; Mrs. Sallie Workman, primary; Mrs. Bertha Mae Cowart, second grade; Miss Alma Weeks, third grade; Mrs. H. H. Singleton, fourth grade; Miss Nancy Wolfe, fifth grade; Miss Irene Spain, sixth grade; Miss Mary Duckett, seventh grade.

WINTON, MILL OWNER, CRITICALLY INJURED

President of Day-Winton Lumber Co. Hurt Wednesday Afternoon in Accident at Bruce When Belting Throws Piece of Iron against Forehead, Crushing Skull—Has Chance for Recovery.

D. K. Winton, 37, president of Day-Winton Lumber Co., and active manager of the company's mills at Grenada and Bruce, was critically injured Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 when he was struck in the forehead by a ten-inch piece of iron caught up from the mill floor at Bruce by the belting connecting two pieces of machinery. A wound about three inches square was cut in his forehead just above and between the eyes, exposing the brain. He was rushed to the Grenada Hospital where an operation was at once performed. Unless complications develop, he has an even chance for recovery.

A specialist from Memphis reached Grenada early Thursday morning and performed a second operation and reports Thursday morning are that Mr. Winton has an excellent chance for recovery. He is unusually popular in Grenada and his host of friends hope that he will soon be able to resume his accustomed duties.

The company of which Mr. Winton is president has its head offices in New Orleans. It owns vast tracts of timber in this section and operates two mills in this immediate territory. The mill at Bruce, 40 miles east of Grenada in Calhoun county, was only recently built. At the time of the accident, Mr. Winton was watching the testing of some machinery just installed when the whirling belt caught up the piece of iron from the floor.

Mr. Winton is a man of family. His wife and children have been spending the summer in Minneapolis with relatives. They were immediately notified of the accident and are expected to arrive today.

HON. WILEY SANDERS AND WIFE IN GRENADA

Hon. Wiley Sanders and wife of Kosciusko were called to Grenada last Saturday because of the death of Mrs. Sander's brother, Mr. A. W. Stokes.

These good people have lived together for these years and as the sun of their day nears its western horizon, they seem to grow in all the sublimer and more enduring things of life.

Mr. Sanders is joint owner and editor with his son, Stokes, of the Kosciusko Star-Ledger, one of the best county newspapers in Mississippi. He was for sixteen years a member of the Mississippi legislature, much of the time being connected with the upper body. He has been vigorous, active and aggressive in his stand on public matters, and has been one of those who knows how to make his position known with force and with effect, while at all times displaying a due deference to the views and convictions of others. He is now three quarters of a century old, but is enthusiastic about affairs. He is for Al Smith and has little patience for that piety that is splitting hairs over prohibition while gulping the camel down in other things. Mr. Sanders has wrought well in life. He has made his imprint upon Attala County and upon the state of Mississippi. It is The Sentinel's sincere wish that he may have yet many more days of usefulness and joy.

BUSBY IS GRATEFUL

To the People of the Fourth Congressional District:

I want to express to you my sincere appreciation for the splendid vote given me on the 21st of August. I feel that this vote was an emphatic indorsement of my services in Congress. Especially is this true when I realize the strength and popularity of the two gentlemen who opposed me.

I have always thought that statesmen were made and not born; that they are men who show unusual ability and wisdom in treating great public questions. I believe that ability and wisdom can be acquired only by hard study and close application. These are necessary in a Representative who would render his people the best service in Congress.

I assure you that I shall leave nothing undone which I can do that would help me to make our District, State and Nation the best Representative I can.

Thanking every one for the many acts of courtesy, kindness and friendship shown me, I am,

Your friend,
JEFF BUSBY.

AN ALMOST UNANIMOUS CONDEMNATION BY THE PRESS

The press throughout the country in the "doubtful state" is almost unanimous in condemning those members of the Christian ministry who are proclaiming directly and indirectly from their pulpits for one candidate for the presidency and against another.

Hoover endeavored to fortify himself against attacks that might be made upon him when he saw fit to mention that he is a Quaker in religion and that he believes in the greatest religious tolerance. And but for the fact that Al Smith is a member of the Catholic church, the church of all churches that is such a bugaboo to many, no doubt pulpit darts would be fired at Hoover. But as regards numbers, the Quakers are few indeed when compared to Roman Catholics. One of the outstanding traits of the Quakers is that they are docile, home-loving and peace-seeking.

Al Smith is a Catholic largely, we dare say, for the same reason that thousands are Methodists, Baptists, Episcopalians or Presbyterians—their fathers and mothers were members of the church to which they now give allegiance.

In 1908, a great man was chosen President who does not believe in Jesus Christ, but if any number of ministers had aught to say of Mr. Taft because of his faith, or lack of faith, we are unaware of it. The Catholics believe in the redemptive blood of Jesus and there is no church that goes to greater pains to emphasize the life, the example and the sacrifice of our Lord than the Catholic church.

We are not unmindful that a vast majority of the clergy opposing Al Smith vociferously proclaim that they are not opposed to him because of his Catholicism but because he is not a prohibitionist according to their standards, but we just cannot rid ourselves of the idea that these good and well meaning men are deceiving themselves, and that the real basis of their opposition to Al Smith is his allegiance to the Catholic church. Many of these same men would favor a school superintendent or the election of a certain teacher because he is a Methodist or a Baptist and would oppose others for like reasons. Most of us know how one's church affiliations crop out at times in the selection of teachers.

These men have taken a sacred vow to their Maker and they swore when they registered as voters that they would faithfully support the Constitution of the United States—that most wonderful document which states that one's religious views shall not be a bar to his holdin public office—and they will in effect say, many of them, when run to a corner, "Well we don't like his Catholicism but we are against him because he does not see the matter of handling whiskey and other intoxicants as we do; we have been given a special dispensation by Providence to take care of the liquor situation and to guide the minds of believers along these lines even if the devil does get us about other things". If Providence has assigned the matter of handling intoxicants to any particular set of us, we must confess that we are making a mell of a hess of it.

We are not making these observations because we think that these misguided men are going to greatly help one candidate or hurt another, but because we believe those who actively take part in the campaign and use their pulpits to make flings about this or that candidate will most certainly cripple the church and hamstring the cause of pure and undefiled religion. If we have the record straight in our mind, every time the churches as such have protruded their proboscis into political campaigns there has been a reaction that has left bleeding sores and over which, in our humble judgment, the Master has wept.

The Methodist Episcopal church got into a row in 1845 which disrupted it and which served as the nest egg for the Civil War.

During the World War, ministers were bold to make declarations from sacred desks about the war which many of them now regret and which they now see are helping thousands to turn deaf ears to their appeals.

The minister who uses his pulpit to malign a man and then refuses to give the one who seeks to answer his malignment a chance to be heard in the same church, uses the garb of the clergy to conceal the dirk of the deceiver. An instance of this is the anti-Smith tirade by the Rev. Mr. Straton of New York who, when his hand was called, refused Al Smith a chance to answer his charges just where they were made. If a newspaper makes erroneous charges or does one an injustice, the aggrieved party demands, and rightly so, that the correction be made through the columns of the paper where the charges appeared.

Frankly, we repeat, we do not believe that these misguided clergymen are going to cut much figure with their congregations. The membership of their churches is going to look at the issues of the campaign not through the eye of the needle, but with a broad view. In short the laymen are going to exercise their individual rights—what's the difference in being preacher led and priest led?

The question of prohibition is both a moral and a political issue. Every issue which has to do with the betterment of the people is in a sense a "moral issue". But when we see politicians drinking wet and talking "dry", when we see those who stand high in the church taking their "nips" and helping to make profitable the business of the moonshiner and the bootlegger, when we see an appropriation of $65,000,000 made by congress to enforce the Volstead Act, we are forced to admit that it is not only a political issue but also an economic issue, a business issue. It is an issue that has many sides and that touches the life of the Nation from many angles.

We wish that there were somebody wise enough to tell the country what to do with it. We are unalterably against the saloon; that is an agency of Beelzebub that the people of the United States are determined shall never show its hydra head again. We are not enamored with Al Smith's idea of "local option", however, it is due him to state that he does not favor "local option" in the sense that the term was used in the years ago and not this unless the majority of the electorate says so. He goes further in the amplification of his views and urges that whatever intoxicants are dispensed or sold should be sold by the government. He promises without reservation to use all the power of the President's office to enforce the 18th amendment and the Volstead Act, and his record as Governor of the state of New York shows that he means what he says and does what he promises.

But despite all this, we find these noble men wasting the time that they should give to getting the hearts and the lives of men in unison with God, on Al Smith and prohibition if not directly then indirectly.

We protest not in the name of politics but in the name of the church—the church universal, the church that works in the Master's name. We feel mighty close to the ministry. They have meant a great deal to us; they mean much today; they have meant much to this world, hence we believe we are trying to save them from what we believe to be their own folly.

In this connection it is only right to say that it is the ministry of the church to which we belong, the Methodist, and the Baptist church that is making itself vociferous about these political matters. Why just the other day a Texas divine, who was once indicted for arson and whose hands are stained with human blood made bold to challenge Al Smith for a debate. But—But—

A GRENADA GENTLEMAN—AND NEW BUSINESS ENTERPRISES.

Grenada has opportunity knocking at her door. To use a figure, old things are passing out Grenada's back door; new things that are worth while are standing at the front gate. The house to which we refer will be unoccupied if new people do not move in.

The fact that it is believed that what we state is true was the prime reason for the organization of the Young Men's Business Club. The one primarily responsible for the development of the Young Men's Business Club idea only recently made a trip to the east with the view of meeting certain business and manufacturing interests with the hope of getting them to come to Grenada. This man bore his own expenses. He is not a theorist. He's no dreamer. He has made a most wonderful success of what he has put his heart, and soul almost, in. He brought reports as the result of interviews that show that many manufacturing concerns are looking southward, that many of them have pencil and paper in hand as to Mississippi. This man feels that he knows that Grenada and surrounding territory are capable of providing for two or more of these manufacturing enterprises. We think he is correct in his ideas. The point has been reached where it is up to the Young Men's Business Club to follow up what this gentleman has done. He cannot do it. He has other things to do, but still he is ready to do more. It is no time for sitting. It is no time just to take one man's judgment on whether there exists here what is needed for one of these enterprises. There should be several committees named to look the country round about over, to consult land records, if need be, and to make a sifting, personal examination.

With no purpose to state anything that the gentleman who visited the east said, and most certainly not intending to say that he sought to leave the impression with us that he is disappointed, nevertheless we are persuaded that he feels that his efforts are not given that cooperation which he has a right to think they should have.

This gentleman is human just as the balance of us are. He may have made mistakes but he has made an enviable name and a splendid success. Who does not make mistakes that does anything? The greatest and the wisest of the world's successes have often blundered.

The point is that we ought to have enough power of initiation and we ought to have acquired enough knowledge of men and of affairs and enough discretion to sift the chaff from the wheat on all occasions. We do not always see things from the same viewpoint of even those we love most dearly. This gentleman is one of the towering business factors of the state. He is capable of giving wholesome advice and he is fortunate enough to furnish the sinews to aid in building enterprises and to make the business of Grenada stable and enduring.

If each one of us in our own limited circle or way will do as much for Grenada as this man is trying to do, the sun of a new business day will rise in our town. There are other splendid business factors here and men who have done much for the development of the town and who are still anxious and willing to do team work.

We are calling no names. We are not giving the name of the gentleman to whom we more particularly refer in this editorial for several reasons and particularly for the reason that he prefers not to have publicity lest the sinister minded would say that he "is paying for it", or that his position rather compels his local newspaper to commend his work and efforts. For this and other reasons many of his activities are not a matter of press record. There are a few so narrow between the eyes as to believe that everything is paid for now except their "time".

But this all aside, it is the importance of meeting business opportunities that are within our grasp and that we badly need that we started out to emphasize.

A PREACHER PREACHES POLITICS

A minister down in Jackson last Sunday took his text from the Bible and preached Al Smith, instead of the "Word" as he was commanded to do. After the sermon he asked those who were going to vote for Al Smith to raise their hand; not a hand was raised; then all who will vote for Hoover raise their hand; a few went up. If we know anything about politics and religion, the two can't mix, and won't mix, and why one will endeavor to do so, is a mystery. The book says "preach Christ." On one occasion Christ said to a man who had an excuse not to follow him, "Jesus said unto him, Let the dead bury the dead. Go thou and preach the Kingdom of God." If the minister had preached "Hoover" instead of Christ, our criticism would be the same.—Ruleville Record, August 2.

No one can measure this side of eternity the influence of a holy, Christian life, obscure though it may seem. From it goes forth a light and power which cannot but impress and help others. It is when it thus bodied forth that Christianity makes its mightiest appeal. And every one, whether possessed of one or ten talents, may thus faithfully witness to the saving and keeping power of the Lord Jesus Christ.—Southern Methodist.

TRUCKS SHOULD BE REQUIRED TO DISPLAY TAIL LIGHTS.

Traffic matters very naturally are becoming more and more a matter for public discussion and of public interest.

It will be generally agreed that the average truck driver is about the most reckless man on the highways when it comes to staying on his side of the road or allowing cars to pass. With the average truck it is just another case of might.

We heard one of the best and most substantial citizens of the county say just the other day that he met a truck and came near ditching his car because of the truck's failure to give that proper part of the road, and this man said that if he had had a cannon, he would have been tempted to turn it loose on the truck driver. Complaints of the kind are universal as to trucks on the highways, hence our admonition to truck drivers is to show a gentlemanly spirit and to be certain to have a due regard for the rights of others.

Just why so many trucks are not required to display a tail light when darkness begins to creep up over the earth is rather hard to understand. And the truck which has a trailer or a long iron shaft or coupling pole sticking out from its rear is doubly dangerous to the autoists. Let's see that something is done to make the last end of a truck and trailer easily seen even if it is as dark as a dungeon. If the law does not provide for lights on trucks and trailers, let's find a way to require it.

OUR FRIEND TALLY KICKS OUT.

We see that our friend, John Tally, has such "dry" scruples that he feels that he cannot remain an elector on the Democratic ticket, and therefore has resigned. Well, John has worked on nearly every side of factional political lines in Mississippi. He ran for congress and then for governor and made a poor showing in both cases. If his judgment in the instant case is no better than in others about politics, the country is safe. John is a good fellow but is awfully windy.

We note that the Epworth League recently gathered at Hattiesburg passed resolutions adverse to Al Smith. Of course those "chillun" wrote the resolutions(?). Paraphrasing Hambone, "some chillun are getting awful peart these days".

Speaking of traffic laws, we are wondering how many of the city administration remember to have ever read the traffic regulations of Grenada and how many of them would know even the least important one if they were to meet it in the road.

Faith is to believe what we do not see, and the reward of faith is to see what we believe.—Augustine.

SARGON PRODUCES AMAZING RESULTS

Thousands of Sufferers Say Effect of New Formula Is Almost Unbelievable.

When Sargon is given to half-sick, rundown men and women who are in a nervous, debilitated condition, the following improvements are noted in the majority of cases: The appetite increases, the complexion clears, gas, bloating, and hyperacidity are overcome, constipation disappears and a sense of physical well-being and mental alertness replaces a dragging body and depressed mind.

Sargon is accomplishing these amazing results in a new and remarkable way—the way that the men of science who labored for years to perfect this new epoch-making formula intended it to be done.

Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills are designed to exert a tremendous stimulative and upbuilding influence on certain vital organs and fluids of the body upon which good health largely depends. The system, besides being purified and strengthened, is toned up and invigorated.

Sargon is designed primarily for the correction of disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. At the same time, as above stated, it is a powerful reconstructive tonic, for it naturally follows that any medicine that brings about proper assimilation of food and thorough elimination of waste products must have a far-reaching and most beneficial effect on the entire system.

Tens of thousands of men and women, of all ages, in all walks of life, have testified that they have been fully restored to the enjoyment of new found health and strength by its use.

Sargon may be obtained in Grenada from Corner Drug Store. (Copyright 1928 By G. F. Willis, Inc.)

RCA ANNOUNCES NEW LINE

A new line of Radiolas including superheterodyne receivers utilizing AC radiotrons throughout, for simplified electric operation with self-enclosed loudspeakers of the improved dynamic type, and a new loudspeaker of artistic design, is announced by the Radio Corporation of America.

The new AC superheterodyne receivers are introduced in three models to be known as Radiola 60, a popular priced table model, Radiola 62, a console cabinet with enclosed dynamic speaker, and Radiola 64, a larger console cabinet with a dynamic speaker of greater power.

The table type AC superheterodyne, model 60, includes seven UY-227 radiotrons and one UX-17-A power radiotron. The circuit comprises two stages of tuned radio frequency amplification, first detector, oscillator, two stages of tuned intermediate frequency amplification, a second (power) detector, and one stage of power audio frequency amplification. Rectification of the current for the B and C requirements is accomplished by a UX-280 radiotron. A voltage switch is provided to take care of variations in line potentials of 105 to 125 volts. Both receiver and power supply unit are housed in a two-toned walnut cabinet. In the center of the panel is a bronze escutcheon plate framing the selector dial and concealing the bulb which illuminates the dial and tuning control. Operation of this new superheterodyne has been reduced to its simplest form by means of a single tuning control. In addition there is a power switch and volume control.

"The use of a power detector tube", according to the announcement, "is a new and revolutionary development which makes it possible to obtain much greater volume without overloading or distortion than from a detector tube in the usual type of circuit. This power detector also prevents overloading of the following audio stage."

Prof. J. N. Powers has sold his residence to Mr. J. W. Eskridge who, with his excellent family, have moved back to Grenada from Durant.

Sen. B. C. Adams, and family, returned from Chicago Thursday after an absence of a few months. We are happy to see Mr. Adams improved in health.

Mrs. Joel Hill, Jr., of Greenville, Miss., was the guest of Mrs. E. A. Penn last week.

Mr. T. G. Bowles brought to this office Saturday two open bolls of cotton.

Mr. Charlie Sadler is visiting his sister Miss Kate Sadler.

Dixie Chapter U. D. C. will meet at the residence of Mrs. Wm. Jennings, Thursday, Sept. 3rd, at 4 o'clock p. m.

The summer fights in lively style opened up on Wednesday evening on the public square. No lives were lost, no limbs were broken and but little if any blood was spilled, and after a little excitement the whole matter simmered down to pensive criminations.

The intended removal of Mr. John H. Proudfit from Sardis to Grenada is a matter of general regret in Sardis. It was hoped that he had come back to stay and make Sardis his permanent home but we learn he has already purchased a residence in Grenada for the occupancy of himself and family and will move down and occupy it early in the fall. He will continue in the same business there that he is in here in Sardis.—Sardis Reporter.

Hon. Fred Barry, of West Point, on Wednesday last addressed the people of this county at the court house in the interest of the candidacy of Judge F. A. Critz for Governor. His speech was frequently applauded and met the approval of his large and appreciative audience. Mr. Barry comes from the town of Judge Critz and is well qualified to speak of his high character, splendid record and stainless life. He also made two other speeches in this county. Mr. Barry ably represented this district in the forty-ninth and fiftieth American congress and he has in this section a host of friends and admirers.

Prof. A. M. Rodgers, the new principal of the Grenada city school and successor of Prof. J. W. Addison, made his arrival in this city last week and immediately began to make arrangements for the opening of the school. Prof. Rodgers comes here from Alcorn College at which place he was teacher in the science department of that noted institution. He come to this community with the highest recommendation as a christian gentleman and a thorough scholar. He is a graduate of Rust College, one of the best institutions of learning in the south for our people. He comes to serve our group and hopes to have their support in his efforts as instructor as well as everything else that pertains to the uplift of our people. He brings with him his wife who is an accomplished lady who will supplyment his efforts by doing what she can for the cause of humanity. We are sure our community welcomes them and will be quick to give response. They hope to become acquainted with our people at the earliest hour possible so that no time may be lost to the benefits that may be in store for all who are to be recipients of the contact.

Graysport community was host to the Sunday School convention A. M. E. Church held at that place last week. Much interest was manifested in the reports submitted. The attendance was large and those who attended were much benefited. Mr. A. H. Henderson, president of the Colored Relief Association, was present and addressed the convention and presented the claim of charity and support of the relief association and as usual got a splendid response to the cause in a contribution amounting to $5.25 which goes into the general fund of the institution to care for the dependent inmates of the home. The officials and members will be glad to get this sum when presented to them Sunday, Sept. 1st. The first Sunday in each month at 2:30 is the time of the regular meetings at the colored school building

Mrs. Willie R. Trussell died Aug. 23. She was the sister in law of Mrs. E. L. Wooten of this city. She was the young and industrious wife for 8 years of Mr. Coleman Trussell. She was highly respected in the community in which she lived. She leaves to mourn her loss a devoted husband and four children, a mother and father, six sisters and two brothers and a host of friends. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Jolliff.

Rev. G. M. Chisolm, pastor of Vincent M. E. Church of this city, is waging war against sin in a revival service at his church. Rev. Stalling, pastor of the M. E. Church at Oxford, is doing the preaching. Rev. Stalling is a splendid preacher and is having success already in his efforts. The church is revived and sinners are being converted and declaring to dedicate their lives to God's service.

Our friend, Rev. J. S. Bostic, continues on the sick list, unable to attend to his pastoral duties in his churches. The sympathy of the entire community goes out in his interest and hope for an early recovery.

"TO YOUR TENTS, O ISRAEL!"

In his keynote address at Houston Claude G. Bowers said: "We face a foe grown arrogant with success. For 40 years the party in power has conjured with the name of Lincoln, while following the leadership of Hamilton; and now, after eight years of successful privilege and pillage, it throws off the Lincoln mask. It could hardly keep the Lincoln mask on its face and Sinclair's money in its chest. The time has come. The battle hour has struck. Then to your tents, O Israel!"

It strikes me that the last sentence—"Then to your tents, O Israel!"—was a poor cry for the Democrats to raise. The words occur several times in the Bible. Sheba, the son of Bichri, blew his trumpet and said: "We have no portion in David, neither have we inheritance in the son of Jesse; every man to his tents, O Israel."

Not long afterwards those who followed the false leader, Sheba, cut off his head. In I Kings 12:16 it says: "So when all Israel saw that the king hearkened not unto them, the people answered the king, saying, What portion have we in David? neither have we inheritance in the son of Jesse: to your tents, O Israel; now see to thine own house, David. So Israel departed unto their tents." Again the idea is the departure of the unfaithful from the fold of the true king; in other words, dispersal and rebellion.—John C. Ritter, Philadelphia.

MISSISSIPPI'S FIRST BALE

---Ginned By Electricity

Press reports state that the first bale of Mississippi's 1928 cotton crop was produced by W. A. Swift, planter, who resides near Swiftown, and was pressed out at the gin of S. M. Hunt. The Mississippi Power & Light Company serves this gin with INTERCONNECTED POWER from its Greenwood sub-station, and therefore had the honor of ginning the first bale of Mississippi's 1928 cotton crop.

So dependable and economical has INTERCONNECTED POWER proven, that over 250 Mississippi gins are now depending entirely upon our company to supply them with this efficient electric power.

The gin owners, who have electrified their gins, have found that INTERCONNECTED POWER is the most dependable, most efficient and most economical power available. They have also found that electric power frees them from large investments in oil and steam plant equipment; from maintenance and operating expense; that it reduces interest, depreciation, taxes and insurance to a minimum and eliminates the many troubles that are caused by power plants.

They have found that the ELECTRIC POWER requires little, if any, attention and that it will run many years without any expenditure for upkeep.

With ELECTRIC POWER, they press a button and their gin goes into action—smooth, uniform action—quickly giving satisfactory results to the customers of the gin. Then, when the last bale is pressed out—off goes the switch—the gin stops and the operating expense stops with it.

What has proven true to the owners of Mississippi gins is true of other manufacturing establishments. If you are interested in speeding up production and lowering overhead expense, it will pay you to investigate the many and practical uses of INTERCONNECTED POWER.

We will be glad to assist you

FORESTRY IN MISSISSIPPI

Wood—A Necessity of Civilization

By D. Priscilla Edgerton, Supervisor of Forestry Education.

A brief presentation of reasons for confidence that timber will always be in great demand and that it is today a profitable crop to grow is the purpose of Miscellaneous Publication No. 26, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, just off the press. This publication is by W. N. Sparhawk, Forest Economist, Branch of Research, U. S. Forest Service.

In discussing the leading question, Can We Do Without Timbers?, Mr. Sparhawk points out that wood is a material of civilization and is more and more in demand as nations progress, answering his question with the statement that every important animal, vegetable, or mineral product consumed by the American people requires wood somewhere in the processes of production, distribution, or utilization. Among the peoples whose consumption of wood is the smallest, he names the native tribes of central Africa, the Malay Archipelago, and the Amazon Basin, who require very little in the way of housing, almost no fuel, and few wooden articles except primitive tools, weapons, and canoes. Among peoples living in countries that were densely settled and in an advanced stage of culture before the Christian era, whose forests were practically destroyed many centuries ago, he names portions of Persia, Asia Minor, Turkestan, India, and China "In all of these", he says, "the history of forest destruction has been much the same and its effects upon the economic and social welfare of the peoples have been strikingly similar."

The United States is the greatest consumer, using more sawtimber than all other countries put together, according to this writer, and in the same connection he tells us that seven-tenths of the timber originally within the present boundaries of the United States has been consumed or destroyed, and that two-thirds of the remaining virgin timber and approximately one-half of all the merchantable timber in the country is in the forests of the Pacific northwest, which now supply more than one-third of our entire lumber cut.

The circular points out also that our need of wood will continue, that modern industry demands ample supplies of this material that we can not depend on other countries for it, that we must therefore grow more wood or use less. "It is immediately urgent that full timber crops be grown wherever cut-over land is available for this purpose. It is of vital interest, not only to the landowner, the timber operator, or the manufacturer of forest products, but to every citizen who in one way or another has already felt the first effects of the timber shortage which improvident and unregulated exploitation of our forest resources is bringing upon us."

In bringing the subject straight home, a few forest facts will help:

The magnificent pineries of the South are still the mainstay of American timber production.

Mississippi led the South in lumber production at last report (1926) and holds third place in the country.

Yellow pine is the leading lumber species of the country and Mississippi contributed nearly one-fifth of the total product in 1926.

Mississippi has produced about one-fifth of the country's supply of sweet gum ("red gum" commercially), the premier veneer wood of the country, during the past twenty years.

Mississippi produces wood from more than half of the 29 leading kinds of commercial woods cut in the United States, in commercial quantities.

At the last census, the lumber industry in Mississippi was valued at $85,000,000, and the annual purchase of such items as railroad crossties and telephone poles runs into the millions of dollars. The one paper mill of the state has a million dollar payroll.

Mississippi has not only had abundant forest growth, but the climate is well suited to tree growth and the state therefore has capacity for perpetuation of leading commercial tree species.

Under protection and forest management, the potential forest land of the state could, within three decades, begin producing a perpetual crop of over 6 billion board feet of timber annually, sufficient to guarantee a total possible annual income of $200,000,000 for the people of the state from wood-using industries operating on a perpetual basis. This estimate deducts from the total of 6 billion board feet, 600 million board feet of firewood, the amount cut on farms in Mississippi in 1924.

Mud and Stars—
Thoughts While Strolling—

Life at its best is somewhat fleet and rather a tragedy to those who are old enough, either in age or experience to judge things as they are and not as they seem to be. But things happen sometimes that give those that see them happen a new faith in life and human nature. Yesterday I saw a blind man on a corner singing and playing for the few pence that free-hearted passersby might give him.

While I stood on the opposite corner watching, I counted 9 men who passed the blind man and merely glanced at him and passed on, and I saw two walk over and place a coin in his cup.

But the point I'm getting at is not the fewness of the good samaritans in Grenada, (for this happened at the corner of the Grenada Bank) but that those two who helped the blind man were afflicted themselves, noticeably so.

The first of the two was a hunch-back with his head deep set in his shoulders, while the second was a pitiful sight, tottering on crutches and supported by mechanical braces. What bitter irony to him who made the worlds that we don't value our health until we lose it, that we don't pity others until we ourselves are to be pitied. It seems that these days we who have health and happiness can't share them, that it is a case of blind, help the blind. I'm reminded of a touching little thing that Robert Service wrote, that we would do well to ponder over as we whirl along unmindful of others and their affictions.

"Just think! Some night the stars will gleam,
Upon a cold, gray stone,
And trace a name with silver beam,
And lo, 'twill be your own."

"Two men looked out from prison bars,
One saw mud, the other stars".

It is good to be able to see the stars in life that shine like the beacon points of eternity, and to be able to get our eyes above the mud of ordinary existence. Some men build their reputation upon their ability to see the flaws in others, to pull down the names of great men into the mud. But there is a dastardly job. It is no trouble to see the mud of life. It is all around us, but it takes great souls to discover the gems that lie hidden in everyday things.

Few men attempt to, but content themselves in parading the ugliness and the dross and the bad before our eyes in a continuous array. And those men that do depart from the ordinary and give us the sweeter and better things of life, deserve to go into eternity with their names emblazoned in fame, "For theirs is the kingdom of heaven", in the deepest, richest fullest sense our Heavenly Father can offer.

One such man is George M. Moreland who daily discovers the stars of life in his over in Arkansas column of The Commercial Appeal. He is, undoubtedly, the greatest wonder of his wonder state. All that he writes expresses the richness of a soul that is in tune with his God and humanity. His is an enviable job. To roam over a state, his state, and discover and interpret its beauties, its wonders, its ideals, what nobler life could a man wish to lead. No wonder George M. Moreland is deep seated in the hearts of his people, no wonder he is beloved by thousands who have never seen him, the wonder is that he is not egotistical over the praise given him, yes, some see the mud and some the stars, but, when you sift it down, I wonder if the star-seers aren't happier than the mud-finders, if the wonder-finders aren't greater than those who stress the mud-holes of despair.

It is a pity there are not more George Morelands and fewer Menckens, more star-seers and fewer mud-seers. If there were, the world would be a much sweeter place to live in and the days of life would have much less to growl about.

As I strolled along I saw: "Abe" Trotman, the telephone ace; the clock in the tower that has been 6:15 for years; Dr. Countiss, the college boy; W. S. P. Doty, our mayor; Bobby Jones, our Atlantan, those shirts for 98c, better buy some; Densmore the hotel elder; our hatless boys; and our curly-haired girls; Bad eye; A. J. McCaslin, uncle Henry's agent; Miss Dr. Hock, leaving on vacation; Bob Wood, the autoist's fear; the new paint on Grenada College; John Rundle, our school fixture; that path down rabbit track; W. E. Farr, Jr., our songster; the new paint on the park fountain, wonder if the fish like it; Jack Frost, the cold drink boy; a chicken walking across Main street, he won't walk long; all these cars, wonder where the money comes from; W. B. Hoffa, the city-builder; those nickels the gun club pop pops away; Tom Neely, a girl's chance; and the signs advertising malt syrup, to make bread; the stroll is ended.

Modern Girl—I understand that the girls of your time "set their caps" for men, Grandma.

Grandma—Yes, child, but not their knee-caps.

DOVE SEASON OPENS SEPT. 1

The dove season opens in Mississippi on Sept. 1st instead of on Oct. 16th. This change was made by the Federal government too late to be printed on the Grenada County license. The bag limit on doves is 15.

PLANT COVER CROPS

(By G. R. Fulton, County Agent)

The time is here for us to begin to buy seed for winter cover crops. When the cotton is picked it will be a good plan for every farmer to plant as much of his land in a good winter cover crop as he possibly can. The process of "nitrification" is carried on during the winter season the same as it is in the warmer seasons. Unless we have some growing crop on the land to take care of the nitrates when they are formed, the heavy winter and spring rains will wash them away, hence our soil is washed away in this manner every year.

The best winter legumes that we can grow in the south are vetch and the winter pea. A good non-legume is rye. The vetch and winter pea are among our best soil building legumes. When rye is planted with the vetch it will furnish a splendid winter and early spring pasture. The crop may be turned under the latter part of May and corn planted. A fine crop of corn can be grown on the land following the cover crop.

There are a number of ways to plant a cover crop. Two methods may be discussed here.

When the cotton is gathered sow the vetch or winter pea and the rye. Sow twenty pounds of vetch or thirty pounds of the winter pea per acre. Sow one bushel of rye to the acre. Use a cultivator and cover immediately. Try to plant before the 1st of November. The land can be planted to corn the 1st of June.

If you have land that has been broken in July or August, you can sow oats and rye, covering with a disk. Sow lespedeza in March and follow it with your section harrow. In this way the oats and vetch can be harvested in June and the lespedeza in the fall.

Any land that will grow good cotton will grow a good cover crop. Put your cover crop on good land and give it a chance. Meetings will be held during the next two weeks at different places over the county and orders taken for seed. If you cannot be at one of these meetings, see your County Agent or let him hear from you by letter.

OUR WOMAN'S CLUB

A woman's club we've organized,
And as a part of one great whole
We now are free to think and act,
The wisdom of heart, mind and soul.

Our rights—the power given us,
It seemeth we so lightly hold,
For days of disappointed hopes
Were borne by the brave women of old.

Who with courage, born of their faith,
Had suffered, labored night and day.
That in this busy, working world
Woman with man should have fair play.

Sue Anthony—Frances Willard too
Thy memories bright, we'll ever keep
For the good seed sown by you,
The ripening harvest, we now reap.

And after years of fruitless toil,
(For their best efforts were assailed)
The women of the present day
See that right, at last prevailed.

And other spheres beside home and missions,
The world's critics soon will find
The scintillations of succeess
From her transcendent, diffusing mind.

For "we the builders of the present
Can make the future what we will"
And with faith and perseverance
Our ambitions, can all fulfill.

And now the scepter we doth hold
Oh—Father in thy wisdom guide
Our leadings, to all things lofty,
And let no evil e'er betide.

Then our motto—onward, upward
Ever heeding that still voice,
To keep gentle, tender loving
Making the high, the true our choice.

"Build thee more stately mansions oh my soul
And as the swift season's roll
Leave thy low vaulted past—
Let each new temple, nobler than the last
Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast
Until, thou at length are free
Leaving thine outgrown shell
By life's unresting sea."

SOMEBODY TOLD ME

(By C. A. Thing)

That the New York World sees, "the beginning of the end of ignorance, bigotry and cruelty in the South," in its being instrumental in the abolition of contract labor in Alabama prisons. 'Tis a pity that paper couldn't see the beam in its own town's eye and try Alabama's plan on a few of their gang-war murderers.

That the Republicans are sending men down here in the south to show us dissatisfied (ignorant) southern Democrats how to vote. We wonder if they bring said instructions in the same old carpet bag.

That this year's Republican and Democratic contributions are expected to total over $6,000,000. If us folks are willing to spend that much just to elect a man to an office, how much ought we spend to save our country's garden spot from ruin by flood?

MAJ. GEN. ALLEN LEADS VETERANS

Accepts Post at Head of ex-Soldiers' Bureau in Smith Campaign.

Major General Henry T. Allen, Commanding General of the American Army of Occupation in Germany and a popular national military figure, is directing the activities of the Veterans' Bureau of the Democratic National Committee. Major General Allen agreed to head the bureau following a talk with Chairman John J. Raskob.

"I know the soldiers would have a very good friend in Governor Smith," said General Allen. "Moreover, I think Governor Smith appeals to them in a very striking manner by reason of his personality and record. I feel that the soldiers haven't had a very large say in the affairs of the country as compared with what they ordinarily have had after every great war, but, of course, it would be impossible to keep down all the husky men who were organized during the great war and that they will be heard from during the coming years."

"The Veterans' Bureau is a division of the campaign which is of very great importance," Chairman Raskob said in announcing the appointment. "The veterans are entitled to know all about the candidate, what he stands for, and the policies of the party, and we are keenly anxious to have an opportunity of telling the veterans what we know about Governor Smith's record and character."

Major General Allen served as Commanding General of the Army of Occupation in Germany for three and one-half years. He was later advisor to the American Ambassador to Great Britain at the conference of Ambassadors in Paris during the Harding administration.

After a distinguished military career General Allen was promoted to Major General just before the United States entered the World War and organized the Ninetieth Division, which he led in the major offensives at St. Mihiel and the Argonne-Meuse. As Commander of the Army of Occupation he was a member of the Inter-Allied Rhine High Commission.

FARM HEAD DEFENDS BOLT TO GOV. SMITH

Peek Tells Gov. Hamill Democratic Party's Pledge Is Ample.

The Democratic party endorsed the equalization fee in principle in the Houston platform, George N. Peek, of Moline, Ill., the chairman of the Committee of Twenty-two of the North Central States Agricultural Conference, declared in a letter to Governor John Hamill of Iowa.

Mr. Peek challenged Governor Hamill to call another conference of Governors of the states represented in the North Central States Agricultural Conference to sit in judgment upon his action in declaring his support of Governor Smith. The letter was in reply to one from Governor Hamill to Mr. Peek in which the Iowa Governor accused him of having gone beyond the power vested in the Committee of Twenty-two in bolting the Republican party.

Governor Hamill in his letter to Mr. Peek said farm relief legislation had been blocked by "politics." Mr. Peek in his letter to Governor Hamill asserted the legislation was blocked by an "unsympathetic" President, with the approval of Mr. Hoover and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

"You say that the Democratic party failed to endorse the equalization fee," wrote Mr. Peek. "To be sure, it did not by name endorse the equalization fee or the McNary-Haugen bill, but it very definitely endorsed the principle of the equalization fee when it said: 'We pledge the party to an earnest endeavor to solve this problem of the distribution of the cost of dealing with crop surpluses over the marketed units of the crop whose producers are benefited by such assistance. The solution of this problem would avoid government subsidy to which the Democratic party always has been opposed and will be a prime and immediate concern of a Democratic administration.'

"These principles have formed the basis of farm relief that twice passed Congress in legislation, that would have furnished the opportunity for the farmers to get the benefit from tariffs on crops of which we export a surplus—legislation that was passed only to meet twice with the veto of an unsympathetic President who never advanced a constructive proposal himself addressing the problem. And this in the face of the platform pledges of his party upon which he was elected 'to take whatever steps are necessary to bring about a balanced condition between agriculture, industry and labor.'"

tion of the late Chief Justice White as a Catholic, to the head of the greatest tribunal of the world, the United States Supreme Court, and after we got better acquainted with his pure and lofty character, and his unbiased devotion to truth, and to the rights of man, we were proud that the south had produced another Chief Justice Marshall to make the pages of southern history shine the brighter. We may have the same reformation of views before this great Democrat - once a boy of the streets and four times governor of New York - has ended this campaign.

I expect to vote for Governor Smith for President. I am not in harmony with Herbert Hoover, "Late of London", who advocates a general mix-up of the negroes and the whites in the civil service departments of this government, and who is as cold as an iceberg when the white farmers of this land need protection, and when the flooded districts need immediate governmental relief. But when he wishes the fellowship of such leaders as Perry Howard of Mississippi, and Bob Church of Memphis, can deluge their dusky countenances with torrents of crocodile tears from his reservoir of political affection.

The present Republican incumbents have given the public an eight-years orgy of shameless debauchery. They have bartered away our valuable oil rights, traded and trafficked in the nation's substance intrusted to their care and keeping. They have placed the dollar mark in front of the appointive power; and have allowed the negro leaders over the south, such as Perry Howard and Bob Church, the privilege to become party bureaus of graft. At the same time they have made it necessary for white citizens of Mississippi desiring appointments to positions of postmasters to humbly beseech the solicitude of a bunch of dirty negro grafters elevated to power by the Republican party. If such glaring infections are not eliminated at the polls, the temple of good government founded by our forefathers cannot survive.

The Old South will not tear up the Democratic playhouse like children because the game has objectionable features, when they consider how the Republicans head us back toward carpet-bag standards.

It is time for southern Democrats to lay down church prejudices and unite in an effort such as we have been taught by Lamar, George, Walthall, and myriad others, to make in such conflicts.

Respectfully,
J. A. CUNNINGHAM.

THE VETERANS' PARADE

They were bowed with age, and their steps feeble,
Now only a remnant of sixty-one.
But joyous in spirit, and so eager
This march to take, (under April's hot sun).

For the heat was great in Memphis today,
They had scorned the easy limousine's aid.
But now proudly stepped into the short line
Once more to march in their beloved parade.

Even tho their adored banner had fallen,
And their beloved cause was lost in a way
The hearts of this handful of heroes
Sang with great pride and loyalty today.

For today the man, a soldier would be
Alert, erect again clad in the grey
With the soldier's smile of a joyous hope
Of being victor at close of the day.

I wonder comrade, where we'll meet next year
And if you and I will be in parade,
Or, if will answer the call from above
And under the turf be peacefully laid.

Memphis down in Dixie always wants us
Even tho other calls should reach a score
In true southern pride she ever clamors
"Let the old veterans meet with us once more".

from a creek or canal or well near by. He dumps the water into the tub of a hand-pump which forces the water up a spout on to the fire. This pump working reminds one of an old R. R. hand-car. Wealthy men often keep a hand-pump in their own home; but lest the fire-god give the pump work to do there is written on it, "Be-r-peh-yong"—prepared but may it not be used. A fire in China is a noisy, exciting and very primitive thing in its method of extinguishing; but fierce in its burning.

While the fire is burning sometimes theatricals are held on the street. These are to please the god-of-fire and get him to go back home. At other times, when people fear troubles are coming, they buy a paper image of the fire-god and burn false money, incense, and candles before it and then burn the image itself. This is sending him home with spending money and fragrance to keep him from starting other fires.

I asked the Chinese if the fire-god lit a recent fire on a ship. They answered, "If there was a fire on the ship the fire-god must have been there—at work." We have towers in Shanghai where men watch for fires. When one is discovered the fire-bell is rung. When the old Custom House was built a large clock was placed in its tower. For some weeks after this clock began to strike the hours there were few if any fires. The Chinese said it was because the fire-god thought that every time the clock struck there was a fire announced so he could rest without helping. All these things seem ridiculous to us but are very real to the Chinese. Chinese life and atmosphere is chuck full of such superstitions. Chinese are never free from them and the anxiety they bring—like a superstitious man forced to pass the night in a haunted house. When the Gospel comes the believer goes free. For he knows the Truth that makes free indeed.

Yours in Christ's glad service,

A. W. STOKES ANSWERS FINAL SUMMONS AUG. 25

After an illness of less than twelve hours, Archibald Wade Stokes answered earth's last summons on Saturday morning, last, at shortly after 9 o'clock.

On the night before when he came in from his farm, he remarked that he was feeling unusually well, but shortly after 12 o'clock he became ill and in a little while Dr. J. S. Sharp, the family physician, was summoned. It was realized at once that his condition was grave. Everything possible was done for his relief, but science and human efforts were unable to further stay the fatal moment, thus, surrounded by his devoted wife and three loving daughters, life's journey came to a close, and the spirit of this man, born June 22, 1861, went back to its Maker.

He was a son of General R. H. Stokes, a title which was given his father because of his leadership of the state militia. His mother, before her marriage, was Rebecca Martin. His parents were among the early settlers of this county, having come here from Lincoln, Georgia about 1840. Gen. Stokes was a descendant of Wm. Stokes, Sr., who moved from Petersburg, Va., to Wilkes County, Georgia in 1784. The deceased first saw the light of day on the farm of his parents at Riverdale, three miles north of Grenada.

He made Miss Ludie Williams his bride something like thirty years ago, and to this union three daughters were born, Louise, Ruth, now Mrs. George Garner, and Rebecca, all of whom survive him.

Wade Stokes was a kind hearted man. He never sought to interfere with the plans or purposes of another. He wanted to live peacefully with all men. He was an obliging friend and ever considerate neighbor. He made a good husband and was a thoughtful and loving father. As the days and years increased in number behind him, he tried to grow in all those better things that endure beyond this life and that make for a welcome and happy entrance into that blessed abode towards which every-reasoning and thoughtful person directs the journey of his life. He was frugal in business, and tried not to spend more than he made, a duty that every man owes to himself and to his family. For more than a quarter of a century he had been a member of the Methodist church, and while being naturally retiring of nature and disinclined to push himself forward in anything, he cooperated with his wife in her activities in church work. A splendid testimonial to the probity of his life was the affection and the esteem for him which existed in the breasts of his colored tenants.

The tie that bound him and his brother, R. H. Stokes, who was several years his senior, was beautiful indeed. They were devoted to each other and each one trusted the other implicitly. This of itself speaks well for their rearing and evinces that spirit and life of the sublime that never fails to attract the serious minded thoughtful man, and that is coveted by all good parents for their children. For children of the same family to love each other devotedly, regardless of what their years are, is a great and noble attribute.

Wade Stokes will be missed by others besides his immediate family. He had his place in this community. He had no enemies, he desired the good will and friendship of all.

Besides his wife and daughters, and only brother, he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Wiley Sanders, of Kosciusko, who was present when the last sad rites were held, and Mrs. A. S. Bell of Grenada.

The funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon, August 26, at 4 o'clock from the family residence on College Street, where a large concourse of friends and numerous relatives assembled to pay their last respects. The services were conducted by his pastor, Rev. J. H. Holder, assisted by Dr. J. R. Countiss. The words of these good men referred feelingly to the life of the departed while at the same time carrying a message of preparation and love to others.

Interment was had in Odd Fellows' cemetery. The Sentinel tenders sincere sympathy to the bereft ones.

I MISS YOU SO DEAR

The fleecy drifting clouds are now hiding,
And the turquoise skies are bright and clear,
The budding green earth is clothed in beauty
But I miss you so—I miss you so dear.

The breezes are playing thru the tree tops,
And softly their lullabys, they sing far and near
But their sweet songs are only sad to me
For I miss you so—I miss you so dear.

The fragrance of flowers is all around me,
The birds with their songs seem trying to cheer
But to their overtures, I'm not responding
For I miss you so—I miss you so dear.

Day after day ofttimes, I do wonder,
If Heaven is not to this earth very near—
Yet—even though it should be far away
I want you to know—I miss you so dear.

The sunshine is finding every nook,
The birds are so joyous, for spring is now here.
But to me spring, only brings loneliness,
For I miss you so—I miss you so dear.

PAUL PREACHES IN THESSALONICA AND BEREA

LESSON TEXT—Acts 17:1-15; I Thess. 5:12-23; Rom. 15:18-20.

GOLDEN TEXT—The entrance of Thy words giveth light.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Finds New Friends and Foes.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Finds New Friends and Foes.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Paul's Use of the Scriptures.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Paul, the Organizer of Churches.

I. Preaching in Thessalonica (Acts 17:1-10).

His method (vv. 1, 2).

He observed the divine order, "to the Jew first," but whenever they proved themselves unworthy be turned to the Gentiles. He went out on the Sabbath day so as to find them assembled together.

2. His message (v. 3).

It was that Jesus is the Christ. In order to prove that Jesus is the Christ, he expounded unto them the Scriptures. Concerning Christ he set forth three propositions:

(1) "That Christ must needs have suffered (v. 3).

The suffering Christ was not welcomed by the Jews (Isa. 53). They were looking for a Messiah of a different type. This is common today in our churches and Sunday schools. The cross is an offense.

(2) "Risen from the dead (v. 3).

This he proved by the Scriptures. The resurrection of Christ and the bodily resurrection of believers need sound and practical exposition in our churches today.

(3) "That this Jesus, whom I preach unto you, is Christ."

He declared that the historic Jesus whom he had proclaimed had suffered and risen from the dead, therefore He is the predicted Messiah.

3. The attitude of the Jews toward his preaching (vv. 4-10).

While some Jews believed and many Greeks, the envy of certain Jews was so aroused at Paul's success that they gathered together the worthless fellows of the town and created a riot. They turned the preaching of Paul into a specious lie. He preached the kingship of Jesus (v. 7). Jesus is most assuredly coming to reign on this earth.

II. What He Preached at Thessalonica (I Thess. 5:13-20).

He corrected certain doctrinal errors which had crept into the church.

1. They were not to sorrow unduly (v. 13).

Because they failed to understand the meaning of Paul's preaching concerning the coming of the Lord they were indulging in excessive sorrow. They seemed to think that their loved ones who had died would miss the blessings and glory connected with the return of the Lord.

2. The events associated with the Lord's coming (vv. 13-18).

In this section he gives the reasons why they were not to allow themselves to be overwhelmed with grief.

(1) The departed saints will come back when Jesus comes (v. 14).

Immediately following the death of believers their spirits go to be with the Lord where they remain in the state of blessedness until the Lord shall return to this earth, bringing them with Him.

(2) The bodies of the dead in Christ shall come forth from the grave (v. 16).

When the Lord comes there will be a real resurrection of the dead in Christ, before the change of the bodies of living believers.

(3) Living believers will be caught up with those who have been resurrected (v. 17).

3. The time of the Lord's coming is unknown (v. 1-11). We are commanded to be ready, to watch.

III. Paul Preaching in Berea (Acts 17:10-15).

1. His method (v. 10).

He entered the Jewish synagogue and preached Christ.

2. The reception of the Gospel by the Bereans (vv. 11, 12).

(1) They received the message gladly.

(2) They searched the Scriptures daily for the truthfulness of the message which they had heard. For this worthy act Paul said they were more noble than those at Thessalonica.

3. The wicked action of the Jews (vv. 13-15).

Wicked Jews from Thessalonica followed the missionaries and stirred up the people against them, making it necessary for them again to flee.

IV. Paul's Manner of Preaching (Rom. 15:18-20).

Wherever he went in the Gentile world he preached salvation through faith in Christ. God accompanied his ministry with mighty signs and wonders, with the object of making the Gentiles obedient to the Gospel. Paul's aim was to preach in new fields so as not to build on the foundation of another.

WHAT QUALITY SCHOOL BOOKS

By Walter N. Taylor, Senator 12th District.

In this article we shall deal with a few simple fundamental facts in reference to the proposal to establish a state printing plant. This matter is fraught with very great concern to the people of Mississippi and it is our hope that the people will "Stop, look and listen" before they allow this legislative monstrosity to become a law.

1. It has been the experience of other states—notably Kansas and California—that it is impossible for a state to produce text-books of even an inferior quality as cheaply as the regular publishing houses when all essential cost factors are taken into account. Many of these cost factors are usually omitted by advocates of the printing plant, but the costs are there nevertheless, and the tax-payers foot the bill.

2. The proposed bills will in effect force the people of Mississippi to pay twice for their school books; first, by special taxes for construction and equipment and regular appropriations and payments out of the state treasury for operation in the manufacture of books; and again for the finished books by the pupils and their parents.

3. Because state printed books are used only in the state in which they are printed, there can be no exchange prices when books are changed. Each book must be used as long as it will last and then be thrown away. Furthermore, there is no way by which a state can eliminate waste in imperfect copies or over-runs. No one has ever yet been able to estimate losses due to these sources.

4. In view of the over-keen competition for business among the privately owned printing plants in Mississippi, and the unusually keen competition among the more than a hundred text-book publishing houses, the savings on school books, state and county printing claimed by the proponents of this legislation are not at all likely to be realized.

5. A state-owned monopoly of printing would not only tend to lessen efficiency of operation, but would directly promote extravagances because of the public sources of its funds. This is the well nigh universal experience with state-owned enterprises.

6. The enactment of this socialist-inspired legislation might easily lead to state operations in other lines of business enterprise. Better nip this thing in the bud before it goes too far.

7. If the plan is feasible, why have not more of the states accepted it? It has been investigated by nineteen state legislatures and has been rejected in all of the nineteen.

8. Mississippi has enrolled in the public schools 563,615 children, while Kansas has enrolled 425,000. Yet the total annual average cost of school books in Mississippi, including elementary and high school books, is $613,000.41 while in Kansas the total average annual cost is $693,344.48. Mississippi has more children attending school than Kansas, but pays less for her school books.

9. The real motives for this socialistic legislation have been hidden from public view. The real motive is not cheaper text-books for poor people; else the advocates of the bill would accept free text-books wherein the people would secure real relief.

10. It is a selfish scheme to create soft jobs for political favorites at the perpetual expense of all Mississippi taxpayers.

"I was in town one day, and while talking to a friend I stooped over to pick up something. When I straightened up, I felt dizzy. I spoke to him about this and how I had not felt like eating.

"My friend told me to take some Black-Draught. I knew my mother had used it, and so I bought a package. When I got home, I took a good, big dose, and the next night, another. In a few days I felt much better.

cratic party recognizes the principle of distributing the cost of control of surplus crops over the marketed units whose producers are benefitted. The party further recognizes "the right of farmers to lead in the development of farm policies," and "that adequate credit facilities and better administration of the farm loan system" must be assured in the interest of the farmers, Senator Robinson said.

"We repudiate Mr. Hoover's proposal to limit farm production to the domestic demand, as calculated to belittle, rather than to encourage the great industry of agriculture," he said.

"If a more equitable and executive plan than that comprised by the equalization fee is discovered, it should be adopted," Senator Robinson continued. "The time has come, however, when an economic adventure is justified in behalf of the millions who engage in that industry without which civilization could not survive. The Democratic nominee for President has committed himself to prompt and decisive action in accordance with the principles outlined in our platform."

Senator Robinson declared there had always been room in the Democratic Party for a difference of opinion as to the best means of promoting temperance and suppressing traffic in alcoholic beverages. He pointed out that a proposal for changes in the existing system was submitted to the resolutions committee at Houston but was rejected. The convention realized the futility of attempting to secure unanimity on the proposal, he said.

"The convention recognized," he said, "that the Democratic party is neither a prohibition nor an anti-prohibition organization but if entrusted with power its duty would be to enforce all laws."

He said the question should be treated as moral and economic rather than political and that many claiming to be reformers have clouded the subject with confusion and misunderstanding. These people, he said, have discredited the motives of those who display moderation and fairness in the discussions on the subject and of those who are dissatisfied with present conditions.

"President Wilson vetoed the Volstead Act," said Senator Robinson. "The integrity of his purpose was not questioned; his good faith was generally conceded."

Senator Robinson then referred to Governor Smith's telegram to the Houston convention in which he pledged himself to enforce prohibition "to the limit of my ability without reservation or evasion."

"This language is an unqualified acceptance of the obligation to enforce the law to the best of his ability," declared Senator Robinson.

The vice-presidential nominee pointed out that the enforcement of prohibition under the last two Republican administrations has been under the Treasury Department, "whose head, prior to national prohibition was largely interested in the liquor business." He referred to the fact that Senator-elect William S. Vare of Pennsylvania, whose action in swinging to Mr. Hoover at Kansas City was largely responsible for the nomination of the Republican candidate, was elected on a platform containing a single plank, the repeal of national prohibition.

"Can it be said that because Governor Smith believes that, without returning to the old evil of the saloon, temperance and respect for law can be promoted through changes in the existing system, he is a nullificationist and an enemy of the Constitution?" he asked. "Such arguments impeach the intelligence of their authors," he declared.

"Having in mind that the law for enforcement of prohibition has been discredited because good faith efforts have not been made for its enforcement, the conclusion is asserted that a breakdown is not threatened by mere proposals for modification, but rather by indifference of the public to proper execution and by corruption and inefficiency of many enforcement officers. It is recognized that the people constitute the reservoir of all political power and have the right, in the constitutional manner to call for changes in either or both the Constitution and the law. The executive has no power to modify either. It is in no sense an attempt at nullification to suggest changes in the Constitution or the law. Nullification exists in refusal or willful failure to enforce.

Honest Enforcement

"To summarize, the Democratic platform does not commit the party for or against modification. It does pledge the nominees to an honest effort to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment and the laws enacted pursuant thereto. Governor Smith has promised his best efforts to enforce prohibition. His personal opinion that the law or the Constitution should be changed to make certain better observance and enforcement, does not affect his disposition or ability to perform that duty."

On the subject of the Merchant Marine, Senator Robinson asserted:

"While the necessity for Government ships continues, and until they can be transferred under satisfactory conditions for private operation, the service should be kept efficient and should be improved to meet competition with foreign lines and to provide for the expansion of our commerce."

He said the Democratic party recognizes that an adequate merchant marine is essential to the safety of the nation and the independence of its commerce. However, he said, Democrats have never advocated as a permanent policy Government ownership and operation of shipping. The party has refused to approve "reckless sacrifice and favoritism in the sale of vessels," he declared.

The platform makers of the Republican party recognized that the corruption at Washington was a major issue of this campaign in their effort to anticipate the declaration on the subject by the Democratic party, Senator Robinson said.

"While rare cases of fraud may be regarded as unavoidable in any business comparable in volume to that of the United States, it becomes a matter of general political concern when the party in power proves so derelict as to fail to prevent shocking and repeated departures from standards of common honesty in the transaction of the public business," asserted Senator Robinson.

If the principle enunciated in the Republican platform had been applied by the Republican administration it would have been unnecessary for the Senate to advise the discharge of an Attorney General "who had flagrantly disregarded the obligations of his office and contributed to the pollution of the fountain of justice," Senator Robinson continued. "The country would have been spared the spectacle of an executive sustaining this faithless officer until public sentiment compelled dismissal, and the dismissal would have been made without expression of confidence in the faithless officer by the chief executive," he said.

Smith's Record

Likewise, he went on, there would have been no necessity for the Senate to urge the retirement of a Scretary of the Navy who had approved the contract by which the oil reserves were given to private interests through the bribery of a fellow cabinet officer, the Secretary of the Interior.

"Throughout almost four terms the Democratic nominee for President has served as chief executive of New York," Senator Robinson said. "During all his service the searchlight of hostile scrutiny has been thrown in full glare on his administrations. That Governor Smith's record has stood the test is evidence of that extraordinary executive ability and fearlessness required in a President of the United States, who is expected to safeguard the Government against such thieves and crooks as have plundered it during recent years."

In conclusion Senator Robinson said: "The safety of our political institutions depends on fair elections and honest government. You may never expect clean government if nominations or elections are to be bought and sold. Of course, such methods do not meet with approval by the majority of the Republican party. Many Republicans condemn the indifference of their leaders to the ignominious record mentioned—a record which never could have been made if the watchmen on the towers had not fallen asleep.

"The Democratic party invites the cooperation of all who desire the administration of national affairs reformed in accordance with the principles set forth in its platform.

"Mr. Chairman Bowers, and ladies and gentlemen of the Committee, the nomination for Vice President is accepted with sincere appreciation of the honor and the responsibilities that are associated with it."

STRIKING EXCERPTS FROM SENATOR ROBINSON'S ACCEPTANCE SPEECH.

"The leaders on both sides must display a sense of justice and fairness by refusing to become the beneficiaries of political influences and processes which they themselves are unwilling to employ."

"Numerous political serpents are hissing in the dark * * *. Sound public policy encourages full, frank and fearless discussion of issues and records."

"The spokesman of a party has the duty to tell the whole truth * * * *. He proves himself unworthy if he knowingly accepts advantage from falsehood even though not uttered or inspired by himself."

"The Republican party is either incapable of successfully dealing with the (agricultural) question or has deliberately violated its express promises to the farmers of the nation."

"If a more equitable and effective plan than that comprised by the equalization fee is discovered, it should be adopted."

Governor Smith's statement "is an unqualified acceptance of the obligation to enforce the law to the best of his ability."

TITLE OF CHIEF JUSTICE

Under the heading "What is Taft's exact title," you present a much mooted question as follows:

"Taft's present title is 'The Chief Justice of the United States.' The chief justice is frequently but erroneously called 'The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.' The other eight judges on the supreme bench are correctly called 'Associate Justices of the United States'."

The designation is a statutory one, and not a constitutional one. Article 3, sec. 1, of the Constitution, provides for "one supreme court," and "the Judges, both of the supreme and inferior Courts." Article 2, sec. 2, provides that the president shall nominate "Judges of the Supreme Court."

Now here comes the confusing part:

Sec. 215 Judicial Code, 36 Stat. at Large, 1152, Compt. St. 1911, p. 221, 1912 Supp. F. S. A. v. 1, 224, provides:

"The Supreme Court of the United States shall consist of a Chief Justice of the United States and eight associate justices, any six of whom shall constitute a quorum."

But, sec. 218 Judicial Code provides:

"The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States shall receive the sum of_____"

So the statute providing for the "judges of the Supreme Court" denominates the Chief Justice as "Chief Justice of the United States", while the one which fixes his compensation denominates him as "the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States."

OLSON—EXTENSION AGENT

Has Practical Grasp of Farm Problems. Is Always Tactful.

It always gives The Sentinel more than genuine pleasure to note the success and worth of anybody and particularly is this true of those who were born and reared in Grenada or Grenada County and who have made good in their callings, professions or undertakings. Besides the satisfaction that the paper gets from such acts, it feels it to be its duty to commend worthy efforts and to help encourage everybody possible along the highway of life.

Just now this paper has in mind Lawrence A. Olson, district farm extension agent of the agricultural forces of Mississippi. Lawrence is a son of A. Olson and wife, who passed away some years ago at their home at Elliott, this county.

Mr. Olson got his college education at the A. & M. College. Upon his graduation, he was assigned work with the farm extension forces. He got on the job and many think that he has more of a practical grasp of farm needs and of farm conditions than the average so-called agricultural expert, and in making this statement, there is no intention whatever to reflect on any others engaged in the same work that Mr. Olson is.

Just somehow, Lawrence seems to understand how to get hold of any difficult situation. He knows how to smooth out the wrinkles. He has a knack of saying the correct thing in a happy way that puts the very best situation from his viewpoint well to the fore. He knows what he is about. He has the intelligence and the common sense and the tact to at least show a disposition to meet those who do not agree with him one some halfway ground. Some of his friends have most kindly referred to him and the seriousness and apparent sanctity he displays in presenting a proposition to an audience which maybe he thinks is adverse to his views, as "an unctious presiding elder". He'd meet some of the requirements of a successful Methodist elder.

It may be said that the farm extension forces have a difficult situation to meet. Regardless of college training, science has not reached that stage that it is enabled to place its finger right on the sore spot concerning any business or work. Applied science is yet groping in the dark; this is true no doubt because of the agencies seeking to apply science. As with farm conditions so it is with others to a more or less extent. The agricultural forces have undoubtedly made many blunders; but this is true in regard to all other organizations or forces. Nevertheless it has helped the famer solve many of his problems and it is still striving and struggling to know the right.

Lawrence Olson is a good leader for the work in which he is engaged. Few will insist that the farms are yielding what they should, and whatever is lacking to make the farmer more independent and really prosperous cannot be charged against the farm extension forces.

J. W. Willis, who is Mississippi director of the farm extension forces, is also a Grenada County product. Without any regard to what he is doing or is trying to do, it can of a truth be said that he is a high toned Christian gentleman and honest to the core. Those traits make of any man, to that extent at least, an exemplary character.

The Sentinel believes that Lawrence Olson is destined for yet bigger and more important things and feels sure that he is doing his dead level best to make the work in which he is engaged a building factor for the farmer and every other business in Mississippi.

Had you stopped to think just how important a newspaper is to the progress and the permanent development of a community?

The ablest thinkers and writers, the most experienced and the most successful business men say that there is nothing that equals the pulling and developing power of a newspaper.

The Sentinel does its dead level best all the time, in every issue, to measure up to the standards of the best in newspaperdom. Hundreds are kind enough to say that it attains what we say it strives to do.

But the extent of its usefulness depends in a large measure on the number of its readers. Help the paper to reach still a larger number of subscribers.

Grenada County and this section have reached that point where they must either go backwards or go forward. What they do will depend upon the brain work, the energy, the skill, the tactfulness and the foresight of their citizenship.

The Sentinel is trying "to tote its tote". It is really one of your right arms—strengthen its power for service. Subscription price only $1.50 per year.

The Sentinel is prepared to turn out high class printing. There is no job too elegant for it; there is no printing job too large and none so small that it will not be given the best attention. Your letter heads, your note heads, your circulars, your loose leaf ledgers—these are all good when printed in The Grenada Sentinel's Commercial Printing Department.

Help circulate The Sentinel and thereby help your town and section.

DEMOCRATIC HEAD APPEALS FOR FULL VOTE THIS YEAR

Election Offers Opportunity to Register Views on Many Important Issues.

ALL SHOULD PARTICIPATE

Deplores Fact Only Half of Electorate Usually Goes to Polls—No Excuse for Absentees.

(This is the first of a series of statements on campaign issues by the chairman of the Democratic National Committee.)

By John J. Raskob

Nothing is more important to the future of America than that our citizens manifest their own interest in its future by voting. We must deplore the fact that in the last presidential election, of fifty-four million qualified voters, only about fifty per cent cast their votes. This year, it is anticipated that there will be fifty-six million qualified voters in the country, and I hope and urge that the great proportion of these will take advantage of the Voting Right. It is a sad commentary on our democracy that Germany, with only half of our population, saw two million more votes cast at its election for president than the United States in 1924. We are generally behind other countries in the voting record, although in foreign countries the voting franchise has been a comparatively recent exercise of sovereignty by the citizens. It is commendable that both parties this year are making earnest endeavors to have enrolled a very large vote. If an administration is to function well and to decide wisely on important issues, it should be governed by public opinion. We certainly do not get the public opinion of the United States when only fifty per cent of the qualified voters appear at the polls. The time to record either satisfaction or disapproval of officials is on Election Day. Grumbling about our public servants on other days of the year is largely a waste of time.

Minority Government

We do not want to see here a government of all the people by fifty per cent of the people. We have been having a government by only a majority within the fifty per cent, which is far less than the actual majority of the qualified voters.

This coming election will afford the people an opportunity to register their views in no uncertain way on some fundamental issues. Neither of the candidates, if elected, would feel primed for acting as Chief Executive if only a portion of fifty per cent of the voters is responsible for his certificate of election.

In 1924 Mr. Coolidge received fifteen million, seven hundred and twenty-five thousand and sixteen votes. Mr. Davis received eight million, three hundred and eighty-six thousand, six hundred and twenty-four votes. Mr. La Follette received four million, eight hundred and thirty thousand and four hundred and seventy-eight votes. And there were scattered one hundred and fifty-seven thousand votes. The total vote was only twenty-nine million, ninety-nine thousand, one hundred and thirty-one. There were qualified to vote in 1924 fifty-four million, one hundred-twenty-eight thousand, eight hundred and ninety-five. So that Mr. Coolidge who was elected president, only received a little more than one-fourth of the qualified votes of the country.

Research into this neglect of voting by the people of the United States has led our legislative bodies into taking action in order to develop a greater vote. The principal measures in this line have been the various laws made by the states for "absentee voting." Forty-five of the forty-eight states have made provisions so that absentees from these states may cast their ballots.

For every one hundred votes cast for President in 1920, there were ninety-six who could vote but did not. This is no way to elect a President of the United States, who, under our Constitution, is given more power than any one human being in the world.

Remember, this campaign will be the most stirring in the history of American politics. There is no American who does not want to take part in it. In many instances heretofore the race has been very close. Under our Electoral College system of selecting a president, one state may decide the result. In that state, a few votes either way may determine the entire election. One man's vote is as good as another man's vote. The quality known as Americanism is demonstrated to a mathematical certainty at the polls. Your vote is valuable. Do not throw it away. If a debtor owed you money, and you were away on the due date, you would make arrangements for him to transmit your money to you wherever you might be. You can make a similar arrangement in regard to the vote.

Absentee Voting Simple

Voting under the absentee voting laws is made simple and requires but little effort. Let your government hear from you no matter where you are on Election Day.

The candidates will struggle incessantly in making an appeal for your vote. They are at least entitled to expect you to exercise your franchise. Strong men are running. Great issues fill the air. It will be up to you to pass judgment and you cannot do it if you fail to register. The American vote has a background of bloody sacrifice by the Great Americans of all our Wars. If you choose to be voteless, they have sacrificed, to that extent, in vain.

After a terrific struggle, the franchise was granted to the women of America. In the 1920 election it is estimated that the women cast thirty-seven per cent of the total vote; and forty-three per cent of the women qualified to vote actually voted. In only a few of the states did the women cast fifty per cent or more of their voting strength.

The issues presented at the coming election will be of intense interest to the women of the land. The cost of living, employment, freedom of conscience, religious liberty and equal opportunity should attract a great majority of the women to register and to vote.

Casts Portion of Vote

Every man and woman who votes and does not encourage the other members of their families to do likewise only casts a portion of a vote.

Working women have a vast interest at stake in the election. Governor Smith stands as the champion of human rights and welfare of the working women. Of no other accomplishment is he prouder than of the success attending his efforts in the State of New York to better the conditions of women in industry. As President, he would have a tremendous influence on national legislation towards the same end. I trust the women will appreciate his services in this respect by their registration and vote.

REMEMBER, YOU CANNOT VOTE IF YOU DO NOT REGISTER.
